Chopin, Chopin! is a historical biographical drama directed by Michał Kwieciński, transporting viewers to Paris of the 1830s and portraying the life of Frédéric Chopin—an artist torn between music, emotional entanglements, and social expectations. The film presents both his public life - concerts, Parisian salons, and the influence of literature and art - and his private world: romantic entanglements, friendships, longing for his homeland and the inner struggles of a genius working with his circle to forge his sound and identity.

Diplodocus is a visually vibrant animated adventure that follows a curious young dinosaur on a journey beyond the boundaries of his familiar world. Blending humour, imagination, and heartfelt storytelling, the film explores themes of courage, friendship, and self-discovery as its unlikely hero encounters extraordinary characters and unexpected challenges along the way.
